

Abstract:

The current research aims to identify:

1. The communicative intelligence of university students .
2. Moral motivation among university students. .
3. The correlation between communicative intelligence and moral motivation among university students.
4. The differences in the relationship between the communicative intelligence and moral motivation according to gender variables (male , female).
5. The differences in the relationship between the communicative intelligence and moral motivation according to specialty variables (scientific , human) .

The research community:

The student of wasit university both (male , female) and from (scientific , human) specialization their number was (14434) in the study year of (2022 _ 2023) .

The research sample:

The applied research sample (200) of scientific and human specialization students.

Research tools:

1- The measure of communicative intelligence.

After examining the researcher with the literature and the previous studies ,he decided to use (alqaragool , 2021) measure of communicative intelligence which consist of (26) resolutions, The psychometric characteristics represented by apparent validity and constructive validity were found, and stability was found using the test and retest methods and Cronbarch's alpha.